

A complete list of Chetham Society volumes published since 1843

Note on the numbering and dating of volumes

There have been three series of Chetham Society publications. The first (Old) series ran officially from 1843 to 1882, but its last volume was not in fact published until 1888. It includes 114 volumes together with two volumes of indexes. The first volume of the second (New) series was published in 1883, and the last, volume 110, in 1947. The Third Series began in 1949 and has continued to the present.

The correct notation, perhaps following the precedent set by the Camden Society, therefore uses the terms Old, New and Third Series - not First and Second. An additional complication was caused by delays in the publication of volumes which had already been assigned a number - these, by appearing late, meant that the chronological progression of publications does not conform strictly to the notional sequence. The list below uses the notional (numerical) sequence, and additionally distinguishes each series by using the abbreviations OS, NS and TS. For more detail the reader is referred to the list of Chetham Society publications in E.L.C. Mullins, Texts and Calendars: an analytical guide to serial publications, I (1958) [to T.S. 7] and II (1983) [to T.S. 29], (Royal Historical Society Guides and Handbooks Nos.7 and 12).

The present list uses arabic numerals for volume numbers. This is in accordance with the Texts & Calendars listing, and also with the invariable practice of the Chetham Society council in its annual reports and minutes throughout its existence. Roman numerals were generally used on the title pages and spines of volumes until the start of the Third Series.
